INTELLIGENCE AGENCIES have since identified one of the Islamic State members who attacked a prison in Afghanistan’s Kandahar this month as an Indian national, officials said.

According to the officials, the Indian was seen just before the attack and his image was operated and sent to the authorities.

A close relative said, ‘They (the family) had been told the news but he has not been informed. We are not sure of his identity or the reason for the attack. We have not been able to contact him.’

The Taliban, who took control of the Islamic State group in Afghanistan, have been operating in several parts of the country and have been involved in several attacks in recent months.

The officials said that the Indian was seen near the prison in Kandahar on May 16, 2020. The Taliban have been operating in several parts of the country and have been involved in several attacks in recent months.
